A Feeling For Justice

Synopsis:

Part cop drama, part psychological thriller, this modern-day Romeo and Juliet story is laced with suspense and black humour as it walks the fine line between wrong and right. At its heart is Caz O'Donough, a sexy 20-year-old with no idea that the new love of her life, Laurence Carter, is a member of the notorious Carter crime family whom her tough-cop father Chisel has been trying to bring down. However, nor does Laurence know the real nature of his father's business. Four years on, Caz is a cop and part of an elite underground unit fighting crime dynasties. Laurence, now back on the scene, wants to rekindle his romance with Caz. That offers the unit a great opportunity to penetrate the Carter Empire... or does it? Caz is torn between her feelings for Laurence and the four-year-old daughter they share, and her devotion to combating crime.
